Testimonials

“Maryam was extremely helpful in our conversation regarding my mother who has stomach cancer. She guided me with steps on nutrition and products to rid the toxins through natural medicinal therapy. Her knowledge is unparalleled in this industry and has really helped my mother through this difficult time.”

- RoseAnn Belsley

“I was looking to find someone with whom I could discuss how I maintain health as I move into the next phase of womanhood (read: menopause). I have followed Honeycolony for quite awhile and a session with Maryam sounded like what I was looking for...Her natural approach to wellness plus her deep understanding plus her great caring personality made the session worth well beyond what she is charging. Highly, highly recommend!”

More About

Maryam Henein

Maryam Henein is an investigative journalist and functional medicine consultant, best known for directing the film Vanishing of the Bees, narrated by Ellen Page. She is also the founder of HoneyColony, an online magazine and marketplace aimed at empowering people to be their own best health advocate.

For over two decades, Maryam's been living the digital nomad life, based out of Los Angeles. She started her career producing the news for MSNBC4. She eventually quit to pursue freelance journalism. Her beats included spirituality, sexuality, and Hollywood. She wrote for several mainstream magazines including Maxim, The Hollywood Reporter, Los Angeles Magazine, Black Book, & Penthouse.

After a car accident where she was hit by an SUV, followed by an pesticide spray several years later, Maryam developed a chronic illness (fibromyalgia and lupus). She decided to become her own personal health advocate. She dove deep into the world of alternative health and successfully reversed her autoimmune conditions. In 2009, she produced and directed the award-winning documentary, The Vanishing of the Bees.

“We’re being reduced to pawns in a game of divide & conquer, obsessively gazing at blue-lit screens, like in a twisted version of the Greek myth of Narcissus where we never recognize who we truly are: a magnificent species worth of complete health and vitality.”
